

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An automatic e-mail notification method on an Executive Information System (EIS) is disclosed. The disclosed method aims at resolving the problems of passive information transmission on the Executive Information System (EIS). Through this system, deviations
5 during transmission of information can be managed, so that at least one user can be informed of the deviations of the report and automatically receive important messages from e-mail. Users thereby actively obtain strategic information for decision making.